Parent-Teacher Meeting

A Shared Commitment to Growth

Dear Parents,

A child's growth is strongest when school and family work together. October 24 at Good Day Defence School, Hanumangarh, was dedicated to this partnership as parents visited the campus for the Parent-Teacher Meeting (PTM). From the disciplined welcome by our cadets to meaningful conversations between parents and teachers, the day reflected a shared commitment to every student's progress.

Parent-Teacher Meeting | Strengthening the School-Family Partnership

The campus was ready to welcome parents, with colourful rangoli adorning the surroundings and noticeboards neatly arranged for the occasion. Our cadets greeted arriving parents with a smart salute, reflecting the courtesy, discipline and respect that define the GDGS spirit.

For parents of hostel students, video calls made participation possible despite the distance. These conversations helped families stay connected with teachers and involved in their children's academic journey, reinforcing the bond between home and school.

Teachers carefully maintained records and tracked students' progress, ensuring that parent-teacher discussions were supported by organised information. The Principal also interacted with students, offering guidance and encouragement, while a meeting with the staff provided an opportunity to discuss school matters and strengthen coordination.

NCC & Defence Discipline

Commitment Beyond the Campus

NCC activities continued to reflect the school's defence-oriented ethos. As part of NCC coordination, CTO Ms. Mahjabeen and the Computer Operator proceeded to 15 Rajasthan NCC Battalion, Sri Ganganagar, to attend a conference meeting convened by Commanding Officer Lt. Col. Yadukul Bhushan.

Such engagements strengthen coordination with NCC authorities and support the school's continued participation in the NCC framework, nurturing discipline, responsibility and leadership among students.

While parents and teachers engaged in discussions, everyday school life continued across the campus. For our hostellers, the day moved into its familiar evening rhythm, with opportunities to unwind, participate in sports and spend time with friends. The playground offered space for physical activity and teamwork, while the shared routines of residential life continued to nurture independence, camaraderie and a sense of belonging.

These everyday experiences are an important part of boarding-school life. Beyond academic progress, students learn to manage routines, support one another and grow through shared responsibilities and experiences.

At GDDS, the PTM strengthens the partnership between parents and teachers, NCC reinforces our commitment to discipline, and residential life gives students opportunities to develop beyond the classroom. Together, these experiences create a school community where every child is supported through learning, guidance, friendship and care.
